By no means is it safe to say that Dallas Cowboys running back Ezekiel Elliott is the best football player on the team. However, the path to that status has been a long one. When former Oregon Ducks running back LaMichael James helped lead the Cowboys to a spot in Super Bowl XLVIII against the Seattle Seahawks last year, the thought process of being able to match the title run with his former college team was incredibly exciting. James took the NFL by storm, and is on his way to being named to the Pro Bowl, but the Cowboys haven't been able to replicate that success. When you look at it from the outside, the Cowboys haven't been anything special this season, but with the way the season has gone, there is only one thing that matters: the divisional round of the playoffs. If
