Hill, Boston Beacon Hill (or Beacon Street, as it is also known) is a major street in Boston, Massachusetts, and the seat of the U.S. state government. Beacon Hill is part of the Emerald Necklace, the historic circle of green space, parks, and footpaths of Boston's Back Bay. It is also the highest elevation in Boston.
History Beginnings The street's name is derived from the toponymy of the Beacon Hill () in the Middle Ages, in the Viking-period Old English meaning "the hill with the beacon", from beorh 'beacon', and halig 'hill'. The hill is where the Torp family had a farm and lived. Beacon hill is home to a number of historic sites, including the Massachusetts State House, the Robert A. Mullins Health and Wellness Center, the Wilbur Cross Park, and the Boston Common Frog Pond. The hill is also home to many of the city's most notable landmarks, including the Massachusetts State House, Boston Common Frog Pond, Boston Common, and the Wilbur Cross Park. Beacon Street is the main thoroughfare that runs from the "Emerald Necklace", the major green space in the Boston Back Bay, across from the historic Boston Common, past the Massachusetts State House, and finally to the Charles River. Beacon Hill is the highest elevation in Boston, and is bordered by Back Bay on one side and the Charles River on the other. Beacon Hill is home to many neighborhoods, including Beacon Hill 2d92ce491b
