A: The word is a very broad term that, within Islam, can have multiple meanings. Both common and classical Arabic distinguish this word into two: one means "manly" and the other means "womanly". The former means "the sound of a man". The latter means "the voice of a woman". It is very unlikely that this is about a woman. I don't know if the person who originally wrote your quote is a native speaker, but it is not the rare-but-legitimate interpretation of the word. Other comments The Arabic prepositions hu (with) and li (for) are rarely used when talking about the body. Even when used, they are almost always used with the noun they are intended to modify. In this case (الجثم) they are never used with a pronoun (means of identifying a person). Go Outside The House For Some Grass Clippings! Odd jobs can keep you sane at home during the holidays. Though the idea of entertaining guests might seem like a major pain at the moment, it's definitely worth it to relax and spend time with your friends. The year just isn't the same without a good visit. It's easy to buy extra gifts when you have a lot of presents to buy, but that just makes it harder to think of what to do with the rest of the toys and presents. If the gifts are kept in your house, you may find yourself receiving a lot of clutter. When we moved into our new house, we found a space under the house that I still can't figure out how we ended up with. It seemed like a good place to put old couch cushions, blankets and big stuffed animals that we no longer had a place for. I almost forgot about it as we got a bit more settled into the new house. Christmas is approaching and your home will soon get all decorated and decorated again. You may already be planning to decorate the tree and might be looking for some new ornaments. If your bathroom floor is showing signs of age and needs to be replaced, look for something that is a good size. That means it can be used with ease and is also cost effective for the average homeowner. Keep gifts for your friends and relatives in line with the traditions that they have. You may say that you like your gifts to be hand
