Sex with ultra sexy lesbi-bimbo freak makes him go crazy. She rides his pole until he. These days it seems like everyone has an Instagram account. And while you may only use it to post pictures of your cat, your lunch, or the views from your balcony, that doesn't mean you can't turn your social media into a business. In fact, if you're not using it yet to its fullest potential, you're actually missing out on a lot of marketing and sales opportunities. So here are ten reasons you should be using Instagram for your business: 1. Traffic – Last year, Instagram generated 3.2 billion visits to its website – and that's just in the U.S. I'm guessing the number is even higher now, and a great way to tap into that is to drive traffic to your business pages with compelling images and captions. 2. Sales – According to Slideshare, a visual presentation tool, 75 percent of B2B buyers will make a decision based on a slideshow. They have other reasons to look through a presentation too, but that's often the first thing that comes to their minds. 3. Validation – It's really easy to forget that sometimes – a picture speaks a thousand words. Your online reviews and testimonials are almost always just words. You can go a lot further by adding videos or still photos, especially if you have a product or service that people can touch. 4. Viral – Have you ever seen a meme that goes viral? Probably not. But you can capture a moment in time, and share it to your followers as a quick reminder to what you do. For example, having a great image of a sunset behind you can make you seem like a local expert on beach spots, or going the other way and capturing an epic moment with your business can have similar results. 5. Influencing – Marketing experts will tell you that you need a “story” behind your content. And what better way to tell a story than through photos? Whether you're trying to sell a product, tell a story about your location, or connect with your brand, using pictures can be
