Trump said the new duties will go into effect on Sept. 1 and amount to $200 billion in Chinese imports that otherwise would not be subject to U.S. tariffs. "China has been caught trying to break the rules of the World Trade Organization (WTO) on numerous occasions," Trump wrote in a tweet announcing the new tariffs. "They steal our intellectual property at a rate of $500 MILLION a year, and they kill our companies and jobs with it. So we can't allow this to continue, which is why in the spirit of fairness we are now moving on full scale to 30% on $200 billion of additional imports from China, and also launching a very comprehensive study on our U.S. Southern Border. This is being done to protect our Country!" ADVERTISEMENT In another tweet earlier Thursday, Trump said he would go ahead with $300 billion in tariffs on China after the Chinese trade negotiators have not reached a new deal with the U.S. The new tariffs on $200 billion in Chinese goods come after a White House trade report that found China had ripped off the United States on trade, for instance, by stealing U.S. technology and IP. The tariffs are slated to start next month, but they can be delayed by the U.S. and China for 90 days. However, the U.S. and China are required to get the Trump administration's approval to suspend them. The 3ef4e8ef8d
