Suppose the class of S is in the submodule of $H^1(X, L)$ generated by $S_1(L)$. Let $S = \det(H^0(X, L))$. How do we show that $S_1(M \otimes K^{-1})$ generates $H^1(X, M \otimes K^{-1})$? This is in the context of characteristic classes. I'm not asking about the actual computations of the characteristic class. I know that the the cover has the form $S \subset Y \times \mathbb{P}^n$

Sat Apr 8, 2019 If you are new to the RC community, you can download Phoenix Re Simulator Launcher and run it from "launcher" folder after you download the Phoenix RC simulator from phoenix re website. And I think this is a big advantage of Phoenix Re Simulator Launcher over Phoenix RC simulator. Nov 13, 2014 I've tried following all the solutions to this problem posted here and elsewhere on the Internet, and they all work for someone else but not for me. Dongle no more appears in simulator options. Oct 1, 2012 I've read and tried most of the solutions as listed on this page, but none of them work. Is there a mistake with my plug-in/dongle?
